Subject: Microsoft Settlement

There has been too much money and time spent on this so-called case in the first place. The problem with the Microsoft competitors is nothing but sour grapes and jealousy that they couldn't break up a fine company and make a profit out of it for themselves. What they really want to see is the collapse of Microsoft so they can grab for themselves what is left over and this is the only way they can see of doing it. Settle this now because if these other companies get their way the cost of this technology will go through the roof if they get their hands on it.
